PRAXAL PATEL

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am currently pursuing my Masters in Data Science at Center For Data Science, New York University. I am really interested in the position of Data Science Intern at Bombora. I believe that my research experience and education makes me an ideal candidate for this internship.

Throughout my undergraduate years, I have developed a penchant for machine learning and tasks pertaining to understanding data. I have worked on a range of machine learning and deep learning projects which has strengthened my ability to solve complex problems by creatively using the data with the help of statistical modeling and machine learning tools.

I am recently engrossed in devising a new metric for evaluation of Summarization Tasks (Natural Language Understanding) under the guidance of Prof. Sam Bowman. I feel that the skills I have gained through my academic studies and my tryst with analyzing vivid datasets will help me tell a fitting tale through the challenging datasets provided to me at Bombora.

My inspiration to apply for this position, stems out of the umpteen possibilities this opportunity holds in preparing me for a successful career as a Data Scientist and in bolstering my skills and confidence to deliver value-added solutions to clients. I sincerely hope that my skills and passion towards this role at Bombora differentiates me from your talent pool and rewards me with an opportunity to further discuss my application.

Looking forward to hearing from you soon!

Regards,
Praxal Patel
psp334@nyu.edu | (516) 707-1006